YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

No games.

WHERE THEY PLAY TODAY.

Rio Grande Association.

El Paso at Albuquerque.

Phoenix at Tucson.

Headed by John McCloskey, master of managers in this part of the world, the El Paso ball club arrived in town today to tear into the Dukes in the first series between the nines since the Rio Grande league began business.

Six games will be played, and they offer the Dukes the chance for which they have been thirsting. If they take this series they will displace the Texas Steers at the head of the percentage table, and give the proud hamlet opposite Jarez an acute pain in its ego. They hanker for the leading perch for their own sake, and they loyally seek to agonize the Paseo City for the sake of the Duke fans.

McCloskey is carrying eleven players. Beer, Kallio and McGlynn are big twirlers. Beer is carded to pitch this afternoon, and he will probably be opposed by Walker Jardon (NOT Jordan). If Jardon's wing is in shape, the wrecking crew behind him should be able to settle the initial argument in decisive fashion.

No Transferred Games.

Emphatic denial of the rumor that there is a possibility of transferring the Saturday and Sunday games to El Paso was issued this morning. The whole string of six games will be played on Hopewell field. The fans are relied upon to turn out in sufficient numbers to make the series a money-gifter. The schedule will not be tampered with in the interest of the gate.

Tag Day Saturday.

Tag day will be held next Saturday. There will be four teams of young ladies who will do the tagging, as follows, viz., and so on:

Team No. 1. Miss Hilda Grunfeld, captain; Miss Myrt Hope, Miss Ruth Stassen, Miss Alice Stern, Miss Besse Sprong, Mrs. J. E. Smithers and Miss Ethel Kieke.

Team No. 2. Miss Eleanor Vaughn, captain; Miss Bernice Gosselink, Miss Margaret Keleher, Miss Sarah Shewell, Miss Ruth Tompkins, Miss Dorothy McMillen and Mr. H. G. Coors Jr.

Team No. 3. Miss Florence Grunfeld, captain; Miss Annette Weisman, Miss Debie McClellan, Miss Shirley Van Wachenhause, Miss Pearl Corson, Miss Hazel Kieke and Mrs. Dutcher.

Team No. 4. Miss Gladys Mandell, captain; Miss Gertrude Walker, Miss Hazel Maloy, Miss Mabel Lovette, Miss Eddie Kempenich, and Mrs. George Partridge.

Circuit Snips

Gossip and Dope from Papers in League Cities

Tucson Citizen.

One of the penalties of having a team of good ball players in a minor league is to always be losing the best of them, and lately Jim Brown has been kept busy dealing with representatives of other leagues. Rader, whom Venice, Cal., still has, is threatened by President Maier of the Venice club, who says that it will draft the Pueblo shortstop in August. Pittsburgh, it is rumored, has suddenly been watching Callan, while the Northwestern League has openly made an offer on MacMurdo, which Brown refused last week. With Los Angeles still retaining Horstman on his contract rule it looks like Brown's bunch may be snatched away most any time.

With Stodoff back in the game, the old double play is beginning to make their appearance. In Thursday's contest Tucson made two, and although they were finally beaten, it took the fastest playing of the season on the part of Albuquerque to turn the trick. In yesterday's game the reforms which the association had fought for in medical schools had been so far brought about that the standard required was now as high as it should be for all of the schools of the entire country.

"An irreducible minimum has been reached," he said, "and it should be honestly enforced—that is, as soon as it can be. There is, of course, no limit to the maximum that any highly endowed and exceptionally circumstanced institution may adopt for itself."

He said that the ranks of the medical schools had been so thinned that a third of the schools were now hors de combat, and it was expedient to mark time for a while and give those institutions which have approached the flying line of a double-play speed a chance to catch their breath.

But the problem of secondary education for the medical man he thought was handicapped to too high a cultural standard. Although a course in biology, chemistry and physics was agreed upon as a pre-requisite to the study of medicine, the subjects were not taught satisfactorily in the high schools and colleges generally.

"Therefore, for the present at least, it must be taught largely by the medical schools, or there must be an association suggested by distinguished educators, a rearrangement of the curricula of high schools, so that they will embrace a course in the sciences which will be acceptable to medical schools. This we believe, is the very best solution of the problem."

He said that the ranks of the medical schools had been so thinned that a third of the schools were now hors de combat, and it was expedient to mark time for a while and give those institutions which have approached the flying line of a double-play speed a chance to catch their breath.

The commission first heard argument on the financial condition of the roads by C. C. Wright.

Faced with increased taxes, higher costs of labor and added expenses in many other directions, he contended an increase in some of the more important commodities is justified, and will be understood and approved by the public.

Clifford Thorne, speaking for sixteen state railway commissions and representatives of shippers opposed to the increases, was ready to present their side.

Mr. Thorne said the railroads based their requests on the theory that the poor cost of their properties had been taken as their value on which they were entitled to seven per cent.

Mr. Thorne added that he did not think seven per cent was too great a return on capital stock, but that it was on bond cost. He said the railroad representatives had come to the commission "with a selected list of railroads and nothing else," and that in reaching the conclusion that 45 railroads in the western territory showed the necessity of added revenue they had left out of consideration such carriers as the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

RODMANURGES THAT HIGHER STANDARD BE DEMANDED

New Head of the American Medical Association Especially Concerned at Work of Low Grade Surgeons.

(By Evening Herald Special Wire) San Francisco, June 22.—Dr. W. L. Rodman of Philadelphia, the newly elected president of the American Medical Association, who delivered his inaugural address at today's session of the annual meeting of the association, introduced his address with reference to some of the evils in the surgical profession.

"In every community," he said, "men are operating who have no right to take human life into their hands. This does not apply to the general practitioner, who, in an emergency, operates in the best of his ability, operates in an attempt to save life, but to those who, for gain, undertake that which should be done only by the skillful surgeon. Surgery is a special science, extra hazardous in its nature, and hence the public has a right to demand of the surgeon the very highest physical, mental, and moral equipment."

In the eradication of this evil of the incompetent surgeon, Dr. Rodman said that the American College of Surgeons, which was organized only two years ago, was to be heartily congratulated upon the progress made.

"The positive stand the college has taken on fee-splitting alone more than justifies its existence," he said. "This evil has become intolerable, and a wave of protest is rising throughout the land which should, and we believe will, overwhelm the offenders."

"Let us at once apply the axe to the root, make this nefarious practice impossible, and drive from the surgical temple those who delinquent."

Referring to the efforts which the association had made in the elimination of patent medicine frauds, Dr. Rodman said the fight had involved legal proceedings which the association was combating vigorously, but that it was interesting to note that concerns with new preparations for the market were coming to the association's experts for endorsement. The council of pharmacy and chemistry now has in its laboratories three chemists who gave their whole time to testing such medicines, and the work had culminated in the issue of a book entitled, "Useful Drugs," which is a number of the best schools now use as a textbook.

"It remains," he said, "for the profession to set its seal on all proprietary medicines. If the only information concerning them comes from those who manufacture and sell them."

A point on which Dr. Rodman laid great stress was secondary education leading to the medical profession. The reforms which the association had fought for in medical schools had been so far brought about that the standard required was now as high as it should be for all of the schools of the entire country.

"An irreducible minimum has been reached," he said, "and it should be honestly enforced—that is, as soon as it can be. There is, of course, no limit to the maximum that any highly endowed and exceptionally circumstanced institution may adopt for itself."

He said that the ranks of the medical schools had been so thinned that a third of the schools were now hors de combat, and it was expedient to mark time for a while and give those institutions which have approached the flying line of a double-play speed a chance to catch their breath.
